

GCHS Newsletter—Hours Change at Archives

Dear Friends,

Starting on Tuesday, August 1, our hours of operation at the archives will be 9am to 1pm (instead of 8am to noon). The new hours will be more convenient for the public. We'll still be open Monday through Friday.

We've launching a book on Amazon for the first time to reach people nation-wide. Orval Allbritton's book Lawman: The Story of Clay White—A Life of Service is now listed in Amazon books. We'll have a Kindle edition up in a few days.

Many of you have been following us on our Facebook page—thanks!

We've been very busy helping researchers, digitizing photos, and cataloging our holdings. We've also been making exciting plans which we'll tell you more about next month—so stay tuned!

On a sad note, we recently lost our dear friend, former board member, and dedicated volunteer Nan Merchant, who passed away after a long illness. She was devoted to GCHS, and we'll miss her enthusiasm, bright smile, and sweet spirit more than I can say.

Thank you again for your support and for your love of local history,
Liz
